A. T. A. DISTRICT LOCAL ORGANIZED HERE

The organization meeting of a district local of the Alberta Teachers' Association was very successfully held in Hedley's hall, Irma, on Saturday, June 13th.

Teachers were present from the districts of Wainwright to Viking inclusive. Also present were Mr. J. C. Smith of Paradise Valley, Mr. Welch of Edgerton and Mr. Clark from Edmonton.

Mr. I. S. Reeds was chosen president of the newly formed Wainwright-Viking local. Mr. Dean, vice-president, Mr. Geo. Taylor, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Wittmann press correspondent.

Mr. J. Smith gave a very interesting talk on the work of the boundary local and benefits to be derived from such an organization, both through the co-operation of the trustees and parents. It was decided to hold a track meet in September at Viking.

Mr. Clark, the guest speaker, gave the teachers some valuable information in regards to the new course and enterprise work to be carried out the next term.

At six o'clock a banquet was served in Hedley's hall by the Women's Institute. Several of the lady teachers spoke as well as the men. The chairman at the banquet and meeting was Mr. R. L. Martin.

A short entertainment was listened to following the banquet, the items being: Miss Verna Martin, song and tap dance, accompanied by Mrs. Caprani-Winkel; Miss Kathleen Jones, solo, accompanied by Miss Winnifred Taylor; Pianoforte solo by Mrs. Caprani-Winkel.

In the evening a dance was successfully held in Kiefer's hall with Coulman's orchestra in attendance.

Miss Violet Harvey has returned to her home after spending a few weeks with her sister at Rosyth.

Messrs. Leslie Gower and Wallace Sumner left for northern Alberta on Monday.

Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Hinkley of Melbrae were visitors of Mrs. Jas. Bell on Wednesday.

Miss Marion Likness spent Sunday at her home in the Fullview district.

Heard at the women's social: "Is she much of a cook?"

"Well, she is pretty good at roasting her husband."

United Church Notes

The Ladies' Aid garden party held in the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Blakely's residence south of town last Wednesday, proved a great attraction and the many visitors had a delightful social time. The setting was ideal and the weather favorable, while the supper was just the thing to tempt a healthy outdoor appetite. Even the ubiquitous mosquito did not seriously interfere with the festive enjoyment. Both old and young seemed to be out for a good time, and they certainly had it. Pitching horse-shoes, softball and the races were entered into with zest, and provoked both amusement and excitement among the spectators. The efforts of the ladies were well repaid, not only by a good financial return, but also in the promotion of the neighborly spirit between all and sundry, which was so evident. Hearty thanks are due to the genial host and hostess for their part in helping the ladies to achieve such a successful social event.

The quarterly official board will meet in the church at Irma on Saturday, June 27th, at 3 p.m., when representatives from all points are requested to be present. As it is difficult to get a full meeting during the winter, it is hoped that this summer meeting will register a complete attendance.

At a meeting of the Wainwright Presbytery held during the sessions of the recent Conference in Edmonton, Rev. T. E. Armstrong of Wainwright was elected chairman for the ensuing year, and Rev. E. F. Kemp of Irma secretary. Only one pastoral charge was made in the Presbytery. Rev. J. A. Caldwell moves from Edgerton to Mannville, Rev. J. P. Sutcliffe coming from Ashmount to Edgerton. The chairman and secretary were commissioned to induct the new pastor into the Edgerton pastoral charge on the first Friday in July.

Services for next Sunday, June 21: Albert 11 a.m., Alma Mater 3 p.m., Irma 8 p.m. There will be ample opportunity for attending church on this, the longest day of the year. Your presence will be a means of blessing both to yourself and others.

The Irma United Sunday School are holding a picnic on Tuesday afternoon, June 30th, at Hardisty Beach. Cars leaving the church at 1 p.m.

Late 1927 Chevrolet Landau Sedan, good condition, four new tires, for sale, or would trade for cheaper car and cash. Apply Viking News Office.

SILVER WEDDING

A large fleet of cars containing a company of over fifty friends and neighbors paid a surprise visit to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Halvorson at their farm home near Irma on Tuesday, June 9th, to join in the celebration of their silver wedding. The self-invited guests took full charge of affairs and put on a pleasing program suitable to the occasion. Rev. E. F. Kemp acted as chairman, and a good start was made by singing some old favorite hymns. Mrs. Reitan and Mrs. Therou both gave appropriate readings, while music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. A. Knudson in the form of two guitar duets. Congratulatory speeches of a reminiscent nature were made by Messrs. H. Knudson, M. Knudson, Jack Halvorson and the chairman.

After the program Mr. and Mrs. Halvorson were presented with a silver fruit basket from their son Alfred; silver casserole from Mrs. Hartwell, mother of the bride; and a set of silver dessert spoons and a silver plate containing a sum of money from relatives and friends. Both Mr. and Mrs. Halvorson expressed their thanks in feeling words.

A most attractive feature of the luncheon which followed was a lovely wedding cake provided by Mrs. F. and Mrs. M. Knudson. Messages of goodwill were received by telegram from old friends at Alaska. It was there that the bride and groom were married, and resided for many years before coming to Irma three years ago. All of the visitors made it quite evident that they were delighted to honor the bride and groom on the 25th anniversary of their wedding, and to wish them increasing happiness in the coming years.

The Need For Security

With the international situation, not only in Europe but also in the Orient becoming daily more fraught with peril, the necessity for a rejuvenated and strengthened League of Nations becomes apparent, if world peace is to be preserved.

First hint of the likelihood of an eventuality, which must have been obvious for some time to student-observers of international trends came in despatches recently to the daily press of this country when the Italian Mussolini was reported to be paving the way for a rapprochement between Italy, Germany and Austria by attempting to effect a reconciliation of differences between the last two mentioned countries.

When one considers the situation in which these three countries find themselves, an alliance in a common cause appears a natural possibility. All three sustained serious losses during the Great War and its aftermath. All three are in urgent need of extension of territory to provide an outlet for a large number of unemployed or partially submerged population, or as a source of raw materials or for the promotion of trade or for, all three. All three are in the same political as well as the same economic boat for they are fascist, dictator-ruled. The people of all three countries are intensely ambitious to regain what they have lost and this is probably the principal reason why they are content with the form of government they have.

It is true that the Italian aggression in Ethiopia appears, on the face of it, to have resulted in triumphant achievement for the Italian forces, but it is doubtful whether, in the long run, acquisition of Abyssinia, even if subsequent events do not result in some modification of the fruits of victory at the instance of the League, will prove of great economic benefit to Rome. In any event, it can surely be taken for granted that Mussolini and the Italian people, in their present frame of mind, will not be satisfied to call it a day and sheathe the sword.

With this Italian viewpoint prevailing and Germany and France eyeing one another with distrust and apprehension, an alliance between Germany and Italy, fortified by Austria, could not be calculated to render the European situation more secure. Both Italy and Germany are not only well armed and equipped but are perfecting their war machines to the nth degree of perfection, including the training of children of tender years.

The situation is an exceedingly difficult one for Great Britain whose people do not wish to be dragged into another conflagration. On the contrary the inhabitants of the "tight little island" are bending their energies towards recovery of economic conditions and statistics prove that they are well on the road towards this objective.

While the British government is keenly alive to the dangers of the international situation, fortunately her statesmen are not disposed to be stampeded into any precipitate measures and quite evidently the people of the country are well satisfied with Anthony Eden's recent assurance that in the council of the League of Nations the country is prepared to "play its part."

Expressing satisfaction with this viewpoint the London Times in a recent editorial said:

"If the League, even the incomplete League, had disposed of the will, as it certainly disposed of the means, to bring aggression to a standstill by economic non-cooperation, nothing would now be heard of the contention that the refusal of aid to the aggressor means war; peace would have made successful trial of its resources, and generally we should be looking on a very different picture today.

"Yet, even if the League had succeeded, as it clearly could have succeeded, in the policy of passive resistance, it would still have been necessary to write another chapter in its development and to increase its powers by completing its membership and making its functions correspond with its capacity. The obstacle to be overcome is the spirit of mutual distrust between France and Germany."

"The outlook would be gloomy indeed if no effort were being, or could be, made to attack this mistrust at its roots, and no responsibility could be more willingly and gladly borne by British statesmanship than that of seeking the means to end an antagonism which survives to the common danger."

The Times goes on to say that this endeavor was moved into the stage of "serious practical discussions when the questions addressed to the German government on the subject of Herr Hitler's proposals for a lasting European settlement were published in a British White Paper" and suggests that conversations be pursued in a manner that will permit of "fewer opportunities for any possible misunderstanding of tone and intention on either side."

Bears Attack Aeroplane

Ripped Off Door While Machine Was Parked Overnight

Unreported for two months, J. C. F. Dalziel, "mystery" flying trapper of the north, has flown to Fort Simpson, N.W.T., from his remote trapline with his aeroplane patched up where two grizzly bears ripped off the door and damaged fabric around it.

Dalziel, who went out to Edmonton last year, learned to fly and came back with an aeroplane, said the bears went after the machine while it was "parked" overnight in snow. The bears were after a bundle of beaver skins in the craft.

The flyer trapper brought a good catch of fur when he arrived at Fort Simpson, and said his winter trapping operations were successful.

A Grim Story

One Person Killed Every Six Minutes in U.S. Last Year

Coming, appropriately enough, from Chicago, there was a grim tale in last week's papers. It told that in the United States last year they killed one person every six minutes. The National Safety Council figured it out this way:

99,000 killed; 365,000 permanently injured; 9,100,000 temporarily disabled; 271 killed every day, 11 every hour, one every six minutes; 25,000 injured every day, 1,000 every hour, 16 every minute; 1,000 permanently injured every day, 41 every hour. Total financial damage $3,000,000,000 in property loss, wage loss, medical expense.

What puzzles us is how the life and accident insurance companies stand it. As for war, well it just doesn't compare with this day-to-day United States slaughter.

Nor should the rest of us feel complacent, nor superior. We too rush about like mad, killing and maiming one another needlessly, making life a sort of shambles.—Ottawa Journal.

Candidate—Yes, sir. I belong to the fighting MacGuire's and we never miss a scrimmage. I want to enlist for the duration of the war—or longer if it keeps up that long.

Russian Armaments

Soviet Government Plans To Expend Huge Sum This Year

When the Japanese war office starts to draw attention to the weight of Russian armaments, there is some reason to suggest that the pot is calling the kettle black. Japan devoted 47 per cent. of her whole budgetary expenditure last year to defence, and this year proposes to spend 50 per cent. Even so her military budgets, and those of all other countries, pale into insignificance by comparison with Russia's. Marshal Tukachevski, deputy-commissioner of defence, recently announced that in 1936 the Soviet would expend 14,800,000,000 roubles on her military forces. At the official rate of exchange this sum represents £2,600,000,000 sterling. Britain has for months been debating whether she should spend half the latter sum, spread over a period of years, on modernizing her sea, land and air forces. From all this it is clear enough that, whether the Japanese war office wishes to put the nation on guard or merely to raise a bogey, it has substantial material to exploit.—Auckland News.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

The liver should pour out two pounds of fluid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile flows freely, your food does not "digest." It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Bile poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

A new bowel movement doesn't always get the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to make the bile flow freely and gently, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a calomel, have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. See.

A Serious Problem

Restoration Of Confidence In The Country's Wheat Is Needed

Canada's most serious problem in the opinion of Dr. W. W. Swanson, head of the department of economics at the University of Saskatchewan, is a restoration of confidence in the country's wheat.

"This is particularly so after the 'alarmist' publicity given to the product because of a temporary crop surplus," said Dr. Swanson. The surplus, he held, was only temporary although it has aroused wholly unfounded fears of overproduction.

"There has never been any world overproduction of wheat nor any chance of world overproduction," he said in an interview in Montreal. "There was a temporary condition of surplus produced by unusual crop conditions in 1928, which was exaggerated by the crash of speculative markets. It has been impossible for this country to sell its wheat freely at fair prices until this alarm dies down."

Adopt New Method

Nicola Valley Leads The World In Fighting Hoppers

The Nicola valley in mid-south-western British Columbia leads the world in fighting grasshoppers—the dreaded locust menace of ancient days.

According to word received by the provincial department of agriculture, the method used there, of systematically poisoning the egg beds of the grasshoppers, has been approved by a world conference of entomologists at Cairo, Egypt, as being the most effective. Nicola is the only place where this has been done over a period of years.

Women Police Make Good

Number Attached To Scotland Yard Will Be Increased

The few women who have been attached to the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard have justified their appointment so well that their number is soon to be considerably increased.

At present there are three women detectives in the west end divisions of the Metropolitan police force, and it is suggested there should be at least one woman detective in each division.

Originated With Latin Poet

The expression "Rome was not built in a day" is believed to have originated with the poet Claudius Claudianus, one of the last of the Latin poets (about 400 A.D.). Claudianus wrote: "What Roman power slowly built, an unnamed traitor instantly overthrew." The proverb gradually became modified until it survives in its present form.

Peru reports that business there has been improving since early 1933.

Worth Fabulous Sum

Chicago Jeweller Not Disclosing Priced Paid For Gemmed Crown

In a gilded hotel suite in New York, Warren Piper, a Chicago jeweller, displayed a great glittering diadem which he described as the storied and all-but-priceless crown of Our Lady of the Andes.

A group of visitors stood pop-eyed before the magnificence of the crown, which Piper, head of the American syndicate which just has come into possession of the object, had placed in a dull wooden case, flooded by indirect lights.

The gold of the diadem gleamed dully against the green radiance shooting from the stones, which Piper said were emeralds, encrusting and hanging pendant from the crown.

Piper declined specifically to estimate its value, saying the emeralds it contained were all but priceless, but he mentioned $4,500,000 as an approximate figure.

White-faced with apparent excitement, he said he could give no exact information as yet to just what will be done with the crown. He added, however, it might first be placed on exhibition and later broken up for sale to private individuals.

Here is substantially the story of the diadem as related by Piper: It was completed in 1599 and taken from the Incas by Pizarro's Conquistadores in the conquest of Peru four centuries ago. Negotiations for sale of the diadem, described as the most valuable ever owned by the Catholic Church, were begun in 1914, proceeds to go to charity.

Piper and his associates more than a year ago began active negotiations. Meanwhile, the crown had been under safekeeping in New York.

Piper would not disclose the price paid. He said merely that money went to several South Americans to assist in part ownership, as well as to the church.

Has Peculiar Style

England's Walking Champion May Be Barred From Olympics

A man with an Olympic worry is V. W. G. Stone, England's walking champion—and for good reason.

Stone is a blue streak on the cinders, so much faster than his British rivals that they scarcely can keep him in sight, yet the Olympic officials have notified him he won't be among those present at Berlin this summer unless he alters his walking style!

"And why not?" asks Stone, justifiably, having just won the British seven-mile championship. "Because," comes the rejoinder, "we're not so sure that you're really walking. Maybe you're running."

And that's how matters stand. A potential Olympic champion (they claim his time is well under the Olympic record) might have to stay at home because his country's officials don't wish to take any chances.

Moving pictures, it is pointed out by Stone's supporters, reveal nothing amiss with his walking. He retains, it seems, unbroken contact with the ground, which is the vital difference between walking and running. Yet he has such a peculiar method of lope, and is so much speedier than any rival hereabouts, that officials simply won't believe it.

Lived Centuries Ago

Gold-Encased Body Of Old Chief Priest Found

Discovery of a gold-encased body, believed to be that of Ka Nih, chief priest in the fifth Egyptian dynasty, was announced by Selim Hassan Bey, professor of Egyptology at the University of Cairo. The professor found a body wrapped in gold leaf and wearing a thin gold crown. A bead necklace also was found as well as a gold-encased cane. Ka Nih was Director of Granaries, chief scribe and chief priest to the Pharaoh Sahure. Sahure lived, about 3200 years B.C.

Letter Will Be Treasured

Has Been Twice Around World And Was Sunk In Air Liner

Rare letter was found among the letters recovered from the sunken air liner, City of Khartoum, which crashed into the sea off Alexandria, killing 12 people. It had been twice around the world. The letter, was sent to Mr. E. W. C. Hughes, of Bowaters (of Australia), Ltd. It was posted in London to reach Mr. Hughes when he arrived in Montreal. He had already left Montreal when it arrived. The letter was then forwarded to him in New York. It missed him there too. From New York it was sent to a wrong address to Sydney, and redirected to the sender in London. It set out again on its travels in the City of Khartoum and went to the bottom of the sea with the rest of the mail. And now at last the letter has reached Mr. Hughes, who says he will treasure it as a memento of a very tragic occurrence. Although it is littered and stained with salt water, the contents are easily legible.

Only Too Clear

A motorist was giving a woman lessons in driving.

"The hand lever," he said, "brakes the rear wheels only, and the foot pedal brakes all four. Is that clear?" "At yes," replied the woman, doubtfully, "but I'd rather not have any of them broken."

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —
LAWRENCE A. KEATINGE

"That's kind of a crude description, but it'll have to do. Grab that hombre if you see him. Let the rest of us know. We don't want to stir up too much fuss. But we want—that—cash!" he ended with sharp emphasis on each word.

They nodded, jerking their hats lower, hunching cartridge belts, fixing a staryap here and there.

"Suppose we can't find him. What then?"

Link's eyes became brownish-grey pinpoints. "We'll find him."

"Yuh mean we're to raid the hull town if necessary?"

Fleming turned his horse. "I'm going to ride down Main Street. I'm going to see him all right, keeping my eyes peeled. Shootin'll be a signal he's found, of course. Lavery, you and Shaw go around the other side and do like Waco and the boys are goin' to. It's a crazy idea, maybe," he confessed. "But I aim to find that money if it's in Rawhide—and we've got reason to think it is!"

CHAPTER XVII.

The men scattered. Link built a cigarette, lipped and lighted it, then urged his mustang at a leisurely walk down the main thoroughfare of Rawhide, sweltering in the heat.

Few persons were visible on the sidewalks, merely a scattering of ranchers come to town for supplies and to visit the post office. "Fly, Link," one man hailed, carrying out the custom of the last seven months. "How's Fleming's Folly comin'?"

Another loafer grunted audibly. "Don't really think yuh'll hold water there, yuh, Link? Reckon yuh want that dam for a fort, to stand off creditors when they come a-gunnin'!"

The six-foot rider grinned—a little wryly, his keen eyes roving the street for a man in a checkered shirt. Also for Jackpot Mell. The gambler might step out of any door, round any building, for the show-down.

"Hey, Link!" Matt Benson called as if reading his very thoughts. "Mell's lookin' for yuh!"

He took out his sixgun and examined it carefully, spinning the cylinder and testing the trigger spring. By no means a professional gunman like his opponent, he nonetheless had had some experience defending himself. Link knew he was fast on the draw, but there was grave doubt in his mind whether he was fast enough when pitted against a professional killer like Mell.

He shrugged his shoulders. There was no way out of it. He would do his best, and the result must be left to fate.

Dismounting before Sam Pickett's store, he tied his mustang at the hitchrack, ducked underneath, and started with jingling spurs across the board sidewalk. A number of customers were in the store, all known to him at least by sight. The holdup was not there.

Link beckoned Pickett aside. He spoke in a tone so low that the grey-haired grocerman leaned to catch it. "Seen a heavy-set chap in here with corduroys and a checkered shirt?"

Sam shook his head. "Nope. What's his name? Want him, Link?" He touched the butt of his gun significantly. "I wish you wouldn't mention this. I'm not sure of his name but I want him, yes. Let me know if he comes in, will you?"

Puzzled, the storekeeper rubbed an eyebrow and nodded. "Sure."

Link turned away. Answering as briefly as possible the greetings of the customers, he sauntered out of the place. As he stepped over the threshold he paused for a sharp look up and down the street. It was necessary to keep a keen vigilance for Jackpot.

His errand repeated in Thomas's hardware store and the dingy Old-time Saloon was equally fruitless. In the latter place he discovered Lavery just ordering a drink. From the steady look in his rider's eyes Fleming knew the wanted man had not been found.

The next building in line was the Half Moon. He shifted his gun belt as slowly he approached the place. This was Mell's hangout.

As the door flapped behind him he gave a quick look around. Mell was not there. He stepped to the bar, ordered a drink, and made a more detailed survey. Five men were sitting at a card game at a wall table. Two others stood near Link at the bar. Gus, the round server, clapped a glass before him and filled it. As he was sipping the liquid, someone touched his arm.

He turned slowly to find Buzz Hamilton, wearing a queer, harried look. "Link, yuh got that steer money? Here's a note that says yuh should turn our share, over to me."

He produced a slip of paper and tendered it. The message was brief and business-like, signed by Helen, requesting that he hand the Triple H share to Buzz. Fleming gave the paper back.

"I haven't the cash right now. Had it, but I got robbed. Sh! Don't spread it, Buzz—I trailed one of the hombres to town," he whispered swiftly. "The other's lyn' out near Junction with a slug in his head."

The ex-convict's heavy eyes, bleary with drink, stared in suspicion. "Yuh can't stall me, Fleming!"

There was open hostility between them, but the manner of each man was subdued. "I'm not stalling, Buzz. It's God's truth. Why should I stall? You're due the money, and I want my share."

Just then Roper Kilgo entered from the rear. "Hy, Buzz, you got the cash? Then I'll tear up this transfer of yores. I ain't the guy to play cards for paper. I want hard cash!"

Fleming looked at Buzz. "What does he mean, 'transfer'?" His hands closed until the knuckles shone white. "I've got to have that money before noon, and it's up to you to get it to me. That note proves it. Bring me the cash before noon." He insisted with keen anxiety showing through his arrogance. "I've got to have it before twelve!"

Link started to ask "What for?" but with a final impatient gesture young Hamilton made for the table at which Kilgo had seated himself.

"Day been playin' cards. Buzz lost," Gus, the bartender, whispered. "They play all night, by golly!"

A look of surprise made him lean across the bar. "Buzz, he give Kilgo some kind of a buzz. And he's drinkin'—plenty!"

Fleming glanced to catch Roper's eye and the rancher indicated that he should sit down. "Come on, have a drink," he invited with a lordly air, rolling a thick black cigar between his lips.

"Reckon not, thanks."

It was more than likely a crude attempt to trap him, of course, that suave invitation. Jackpot Mell was certain to enter sooner or later. But Link preferred the shooting, if there was one, to take place outdoors rather than in the Half Moon.

"Aw," Buzz sneered in reply to something Roper said, "he claims he ain't got the money right now. Got to get a check cashed or something."

At any rate Hamilton had kept the secret. Link paid for his drink, preparing to leave. As he handed back change Gus whispered to him: "Watch yore, adep, Link. He's loogin' for yuh."

"Thanks," Fleming strode outside. Just then a two-seater buggy drew up to the hitchrack before Pieper's bank and he recognized Helen Hamilton alighting. She saw him at the same moment and beckoned.

"Is Buzz in there?" was her opening question as he approached reluctantly.

"Yes."

She frowned and moistened her cherry-red lips, looking up at him. "Could you—that is, would you—make him come out?" Oh, she hurried on. "Buzz said he had an important matter to attend to in town. That was last night, just after Roper left. I—I went to bed, but this morning I discovered Buzz hadn't come back. I didn't find out till an hour ago, as I got up early and went to look at the dam. The men insist they must have their money today," she added.

As Link nodded she stared downward with the toe of one shapely riding boot made little marks in the dust. "I know Buzz has been gambling. It's been in his blood. I've seen the longing in his face ever since he came home. Is he—drinking much?"

"Quite a bit."

Helen sighed. "Is Roper in there?" "Yes. It might be hard to get Buzz out. They played poker all night. Where did he get the money, Helen?"

"He didn't have much. But Link, I—I'm afraid. You see, I gave him power of attorney."

"He started. 'You did!'"

"Yes. Roper said I should give Buzz more responsibility, that it would be the making of him. Why?" The girl's wide eyes sought his, and when he did not answer at once she clutched his arm in apprehension.

"Link! What has he done?"

"Well," came, reluctantly, "he signed over your ranch to Roper on some kind of temporary scheme. For cash to play with, I reckon—a loan. He's in a rush for the steer money before noon." He glanced at his watch. It's eleven now. Must be," he reflected, "Kilgo was foxy enough to the Buzz up in some trick agreement. Either he must pay back the money Roper loaned or, if he hasn't done it by noon, the Triple H changes hands!"

The girl's slender fingers went to her lips. "He couldn't!" she gasped, and turned to stare at the stolid front of the Half Moon.

"Yes, I reckon he could. It'd be legal, all right."

Waco Byrne was approaching, still some distance off. At a sign of him Halby started from another direction, and Drew from a third. Helen touched Link's arm. "Well, you shipped the cattle, didn't you? Where's the money? We'll—we'll take up Roper's note."

"But why are you worried?" he questioned, delaying the truth as long as he dared. "If you and Roper are—well, suppose Kilgo does get possession of your spread? I mean, if you and Roper are to be—married, in this state a husband owns his wife's property anyhow."

He did not look at her as he spoke, and when he did lift his eyes, found her anxiety rebelled. "But, Link," she warned, "Roper boasted to Jackpot Mell that he didn't intend to marry me! That he was—it was all in order to get the ranch. Sheriff Stephen rode past the spread this morning and said—"

"And now—now," she struggled, "he's going to get it by this agreement with Buzz! Oh, why do you stand there?" the girl cried angrily. "Why don't you pay me the cattle money—and get Buzz out of this mess? It's ours, isn't it? We've entitled it, didn't we? Why don't you give it to me?"

The Star Loop riders were almost in earshot, converging as they neared. Link swallowed hard, strove to meet her blazing eyes—but dropped his gaze to the road at his feet. "Gosh, Helen, I would! Only I—I was held up. It's gone."

Build Another Road

Highway From McMurray To Goldfields Is Projected

First link of a proposed water road from McMurray, Alta., to Goldfields, Sask., on Lake Athabasca, a seven-mile highway will be constructed north from McMurray along the Athabasca river, Hon. W. A. Fal-low, Alberta minister of public works, announced.

Docks would be built at the end of the seven-mile stretch, being built to avoid the necessity of handling freight by portage past rapids in the river at low water periods. "I am still determined to get a road through to serve the Goldfields area as soon as possible," Mr. Fal-low said. He added such a road was essential to the mining development of the north for which Edmonton is the natural gateway.

The letter "e" is used more than any other in the English language.

A Dickens Story

Man Charged With Robbery "Recognized" Author As Receiver Of Stolen Goods

Everything to do with Charles Dickens, particularly at the present time, is interesting, says a correspondent in Sunday Times. Mr. Dickens and Mr. Mark Lemon attended at Marylebone police-court on March 20, 1849; the latter for the purpose of preferring a charge against Cornelius Heame for attempted robbery.

Mr. Lemon said in evidence: "I was walking with my friend Mr. Dickens along the Edgeware Road. I felt a hand in my coat pocket, and on turning round saw the prisoner draw his hand therefrom. I and Mr. Dickens ran after him, and he was shortly afterwards taken."

Mr. Dickens, at the station, said: "I thought I knew the prisoner and I had seen him at the House of Correction." Prisoner said: "Now, your worship, he must have been in 'quod' then himself or he could not have seen me. I know these two gentlemen well; they're no better than swell mob-men and get their living by buying stolen goods (Laughter). That one" (pointing to Mr. Dickens) "keeps a fence, and I recollect him at the prison when he was put in for six months, while I was only there for two."

The report goes on to state: "Both the literary gentleman appeared to enjoy amazingly the honor which the prisoner had with such unblushing effrontery conferred upon him. The prisoner's age is given as 19 years."

Fortress In Caspian Sea

Sank Far Below Surface Years Ago In Earthquake

Soviet scientists in Moscow said they believed the Caspian Sea, world's richest source of caviar, is drying up. In Baku harbor, deep water port, a fortress has appeared. The scientists say the battlements were constructed 800 years ago by Persian Shahs as an outpost in the centuries of struggles between Russian and Persian armies. Long ago it sank far below the surface of the sea in an earthquake but still the sturdy walls remain.

Fly Mathematics

Fly Can Become A Great, Great, Grandmother In Only A Few Weeks

A single female fly usually lays 600 to 1,000 eggs in her lifetime. Under favourable conditions these eggs hatch in ten or twelve days and there is an opportunity for seven or more generations in a season! In other words, this single fly can produce in only three generations, a few weeks apart, as many as one billion disease carrying menaces to health.

It is obvious that every effort should be put forth to destroy the first flies of the season. Each of the early flies killed means destruction of potential swarms. As a menace to health, to say nothing of its disgusting loathsomeness, the fly is known to be a carrier of the germs of summer diarrhoea, typhoid and other serious diseases. And, although sanitation efforts have been instituted to curb many sources of contagious diseases, there has been little success in eradicating the common house-fly. It is a matter requiring personal effort to keep the home clear of flies. The elimination of possible breeding places such as uncovered garbage, refuse, manure, rotting leaves, screens on doors and windows and covering of all foods, are all necessary precautions. But, should flies enter the home, a few Wilson's Fly Pads, used regularly according to directions, will kill them all in a few hours.

Little Helps For This Week

Father, if Thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless, not my will, but Thine be done. Luke 22:42.

Just as Thou wilt is all that I would wish. Give me but this, the heart to be content. And if my wish is thwarted, I lie still. Waiting till puzzle and till pain are spent. And the sweet thing made plain which Thou Lord meant.

Let your will be one with His will, and be glad to be disposed of by Him. He will order all things for you. What can cross your will when it is one with His, on which all creation hangs and around which all things revolve? Keep your hearts clear of evil thoughts, for as they estrange the will from His will they will cloud the soul and hide Him from us. Whatever sets us in opposition to Him makes our will an intolerable torment. So long as we will one thing and He another we go on piercing ourselves through and through with a perpetual wound, and His will moves on in sanctity and majesty crushing ours into the dust.

More Bibles For China

Two million copies of the scriptures were circulated in China in 1935 by the American Bible Society, according to a report received in New York from the China agency of the society. For the fifth year in succession more complete Bibles were put in circulation in China last year by the three societies at work there than in any earlier year.

NEWS ITEMS FROM JARROW

Mr. Richard Marbury and family were visitors last Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ward Matthews.

Miss Lucile Mark of Kinsella is spending a few days at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Fred Coe.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Morgan are proud parents of a baby girl, born June 16. Gilbert Stewart, who is located on the Waite farm, was calling on old friends in Kinsella this week.

Pat. Barton has hurt her knee and has been ordered to remain in bed for a few days.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Rube Snider has been taken to the Viking hospital. He has been troubled with his heart of late.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kerns were visitors at the Jarrow manse last Monday.

Every one has put away his long face and is wearing an attractive smile, and why not? For we have had fine growing rain. One person was heard saying: "We have good reason to thank God for this rain which was sent just in season to save our crop."

Miss Gladys Meakins from Vermilion is spending her vacation at the home of her parents. Her father, R. T. Meakins, is still confined to the University hospital, Edmonton.

Mrs. Ed. Peet is spending a few weeks with her two married daughters who reside near Lacombe. Mr. Ernie Wade and family are spending a few days in Edmonton.

Mr. Editor: I am greatly disappointed at the decision of the judges on the night of June 11th, when the amateur program was held in the Kiefer's theatre, Viking. I understand that the first honor was given to the young man who sang the cowboy song, accompanied by his guitar.

In my estimation the mentioned young man was far from being the first. His voice was untrained, he slurred badly and by no means was a good yodeler. It appears to me that the adjudicators were not competent when they gave honor to whom honor was not due. The adjudicators should be in the theatre where the amateur program was presented and where those who took part in the program could be visible to the judges, for the appearance on the stage should be taken into consideration.

The adjudicators may be in Edmonton which to some extent may account for the wrong decision. If the radio did not carry properly the voices or the music, the performer can't be blamed for the imperfection of the microphone or the radio.

We can't expect the public to assist in any future program unless competent judges are engaged on whose decision we can depend.

FARM WOMEN'S WEEK

It would appear that Farm Women's Week at the School of Agriculture, Vermilion, promises to be very largely attended this year. Registrations are coming in regularly for the four days of real enjoyment and profit for those who attend.

Mrs. A. R. McRoberts, of Irma, has just written in to say that a party of 15 ladies are arranging to come from that district and Mrs. Westbrook of Phillips also sent in the names of another party of eight.

Provision will be made to care for children under five years of age so that the mothers may be as free as possible to enjoy the lectures and demonstrations.

There is also a movement on the part of students who have attended the Vermilion school to see to it that their mothers enjoy these four days of rest and pleasure.

The program is arranged to start at 8.45 a.m., Tuesday, July 7th, but most of the ladies will arrive the afternoon or evening of July 6th, so as to be on hand for the program, which begins at 8.45 Tuesday morning.
